

Michigan Guard Training Now In Full Swing

Legislative Body Surveys Camp

Excellent progress is being made in the modernization of Camp Grayling despite the limited funds available, reported a state legislative investigating committee after a tour of the camp's facilities.

The committee made a four-day survey of Michigan National Guard lands, construction and operations at this historic state military reservation.

Representative John S. Ptaszkiewicz, Hamtramck, chairman of the survey committee, declared, "I believe the State Military Establishment warrants commendation for the amazing speed with which they have carried out a million dollar federal-state improvement program during the past year."

After an inspection of the huge Grayling air base constructed by the Army during the war to protect the Soo locks, Rep. Ptaszkiewicz declared that the legislative committee would urge Senator Homer Ferguson to seek enabling legislation for transfer of the base to the Michigan National Guard.

The Air Guard is currently using the base for field training under a temporary lease, but necessary improvements are prohibited.

Senator Carlton H. Morris, Kalamazoo, chairman of Senate Veterans and Military Affairs Committee, said it was a revelation to learn of the scope and importance of the National Guard in both state and federal security plans.

Improvement of Camp Grayling training facilities will benefit the entire state, he declared. "The committee believes," he said, "that the state should proceed as rapidly as possible in completing training facilities to handle at least 15,000 troops at one time."

Representative John D. Kruse, Manistee, chairman of House Military and Veterans Affairs Committee, declared, "this initial improvement program is well begun and long overdue. The master plan is well conceived in view of modern military requirements and deserves to be finished at an early date."

Representative William S. Broomfield, Royal Oak, was particularly interested in the cost estimates presented by Colonel Herbert F. Layle, state quartermaster general. The state grant of $140,000 for the current fiscal year for camp improvements, and $150,000 last year. He declared, "I have a much better picture of your problems after this inspection and I hope that we can expedite this needed improvement program."

Senator Garland B. Lane, Flint, concurred in the committee's recommendations for expediting the modernization program. He declared, "the volunteer Michigan troops need at least basic housing and sanitation if they are to get the most out of their military training."

Col. Layle estimated total costs of the expansion program at $6,065,262. Of this, $875,000 has already been spent. The entire project should be completed, he said within three years. By that time training facilities must be adequate to handle mass military operations involving regimental combat teams and the 46th Infantry Division.

Major General Ralph A. Loveland, commanding general, was host to the legislative committee. He officially opened the new power, sewage and water utilities completed just in time for the 1949 encampment in a switch-throwing ceremony last Friday. More than 8,000 troops moved into Camp Grayling Saturday morning for the Guard's greatest encampment in history.

HONORED AT LUNCHEON
Margaret Beck of Detroit, Department of Michigan V. F. W. Auxiliary president, and Frances Hugener of Detroit, Department Chief of Staff, called at the Bolton home Friday. Accompanied by Mrs. Bolton, Department Assistant Conductress, they drove on to Gaylord, where they attended a luncheon given in their honor by Post Clyde Wilks Auxiliary.

The tables were beautifully decorated with garden flowers and a lovely luncheon was served. Following the luncheon Margaret Smith of Gaylord, Department legislative chairman, had the local photographer take pictures of the group for the local papers.

The guests of honor were each sent a print of the picture as a memento of the occasion.

Doctor Will Fly To United Fund Meetings

Dr. Warren B. Cooksey of Detroit, president of the Michigan Heart Association, will drop in out of the clouds on the United Fund regional campaign meetings to be held in Saginaw, August 16, Traverse City, August 17, and Iron Mountain, August 18.

Dr. Cooksey is a pilot with many hours of flying time to his credit. He will fly from his summer home near Grayling, where he is spending his vacation.

Dr. Cooksey will take part in the panel on member agencies, services, discussing the work of the Heart Association and the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation.

Indies Defeat Comins, 3-1

The Grayling Independents wound up regular league play for the season with a revenge defeat of Comins here by a 3 to 1 score. Comins was the only team that had a win over the league leading Grayling team this season.

League playoff games will start for Grayling this Sunday here, when Houghton Lake moves in for the opener in the sudden death series. A loss in the playoffs automatically drops the team from further play. The following Sunday is an open date for Grayling, win or lose, so feelers are out now trying to line up a home game for that date. A game with Kalamazoo is likely, it was said. If Grayling defeats Houghton Lake, they will move into the second round of playoffs on Sunday, August 28.

Max Niederer went the route on the mound for Grayling last Sunday and gave up only 6 hits while striking out 5 Comins batters and walking 2. Abbe Comins hurled had the same strikeout and walk record but gave up 8 hits. Grayling made one error to Comins' 4 misplays.

The local team blasted in 2 runs in the initial inning, enough to win the ball game and then added one more in the eighth. Comins tallied their lone run in the second inning. Leading hitters for Grayling were Bob Horning with two hits in three trips to the plate and George Hanson and Max Niederer with two hits each in four trips. One of Niederer's clouts was a double in the second frame. Elmer Kellogg and Eddie Owen each got one hit in three trips. Owen's hit was a triple in the eighth inning.

Flint Photographer Opens Studio Here
Frank Fulkerson, photographer famed for his outdoor pictures made in Michigan vacation spots for various advertising agencies, including the Grayling area, has opened a studio on Norway Street here for the month of August.

Mr. Fulkerson who does a great deal of commercial and aerial photography is spending his fifth season around Grayling where he has made many friends among the business men and the National Guard organization.

He already has taken quite a number of company group photos for the various Guard detachments. This year he has expanded his service to the Air Guard in the setting up a fully equipped laboratory and "Souvenir of Grayling" studio. Three Grayling backgrounds photo scenes have been painted and installed. The first is a Camp Grayling scene for use of troop photos, the second is an aerial scene for use of Air Guard photos and the third is a four season vacation scene for the vacationist that visits Grayling wishes to have a Grayling photo memento.

While in Grayling for the month of August, Mr. Fulkerson will personally photograph any children or babies by appointment only. He is equipped with a new studio camera, the McVint which is the first one in the State. It is used with strobe lights and the photos are taken at the high speed of one five hundredth of a second. There are no bright lights used to confuse the subject of the picture.

Governor Review 2 P. M. Saturday

Troops, jeeps, trucks and heavy mechanized equipment of Michigan's 46th Division will roll past a reviewing stand starting at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Division Review Field on the bluff above sparkling, blue Lake Margrethe.

The marching troops and roaring equipment manned by the peacetime soldiers of Michigan will be reviewed by the Commander in Chief, Governor G. Mennen Williams and the Divisional Commander Major General Ralph A. Loveland. Others on the reviewing stand will be Brig. General George C. Moran, Adjutant General of Michigan and Brig. General Harold Weber, assistant commander of the 46th Division, Michigan National Guard as well as other officers of the Division and from the 5th Army.

Lt. General Stephen J. Chamberlain, Chicago, 5th Army commander, arrived Wednesday morning to inspect Camp Grayling facilities and the summer training program underway here for 8,000 Michigan National Guardsmen.

A group of eight officers from the 5th Army headquarters, which directs army activities in Michigan and other midwestern states, will accompany General Chamberlain on his day-long inspection tour of the camp.

Maj. General Ralph A. Loveland, Michigan National Guard commander, and his staff were also planning today for a visit this week end by Governor Williams and other state officials.

The governor will review ground force units at a formal parade Saturday afternoon, and take part in memorial services Sunday morning for Guardsmen who lost their lives in the two World Wars. He will remain in camp Saturday night.

At the Guard's 46th Division headquarters, an official camp attendance of 7,791 was announced Tuesday, with late arrivals expected to bring the figure above 8,000 for the two-week summer training schedule. Another 1,000 Air Guardsmen are stationed at nearby Grayling air base.

New units in camp this year for the first time includes the 146th and 593rd anti-aircraft automatic weapons battalions from Detroit and Ironwood. Both units were busy Tuesday setting up 40-millimeter Bofors guns for preliminary instruction in providing anti-aircraft protection for ground troops. All artillery units move their guns to artillery range to begin firing Wednesday.

Infantry units concentrated on small arms range firing, using the newly-completed rifle, carbine, pistol, mortar, machine gun and sub-machine gun ranges for marksmanship practice. Armored units launched their summer field exercises at the Guard's new armored training center, 11 miles northeast of camp.

The 119th field artillery battalion's service battery from Lansing took top honors among artillery units for best camp attendance.

Plan Mass Parachute Jump As Guard Airborne Training

Wednesday at 5 P. M. a flight of four C-82's (Flying Box Cars) will take off from McNamara Airport to demonstrate to Michigan National Guard the fine points of an airborne attack.

Fighter craft of the Michigan Air Guard will fly cover for the big ships to make complete the simulation of war time conditions. After the four huge flying craft have obtained altitude and flying formation—a single plane will sweep across the field to drop two smoke bombs to denote the jump point and also to pick up the facts of wind drift. Then two airborne troops will jump equipped with small radios. They are known as "pathfinders." Following the four C-82's will come over the field in formation and drop 30 airborne troops and some equipment bundles. Still another run will be made to drop more equipment. And the final run by a single ship will drop an airborne infantryman carrying a Division banner.

The four huge flying craft and men are from the 7th Troop Carrier Squadron of the 62nd Troop Carrier Group and are under the command of Captain Brandt McIntyre. The thirty paratroopers are from the 5th Army Airborne Unit and are under the command of Lt. Jack T. Shannon and their base is Fort Sheridan, Illinois. The drop will take place directly over the airport and is open to civilian onlookers.

The simulated airborne attack is to show the close co-operation between the Air Force and the Army.

Many Distinguished Visitors at Camp
Many distinguished visitors have been at Camp Grayling since the troops moved in last week. Regular Army Officers of the Fifth Army are here in an advisory and inspection capacity.

On Monday, Major General Kenneth E. Cramer, chief of the National Guard and Harold C. Stuart, who is on the staff of Secretary for Air Symington arrived here in a modified B-25 bomber. Also arriving on Monday was Lt. General Elwood Quesada, Assistant Chief of Staff for the Reserve Corps. He was brought here in a B-17 bomber.

Former Governor Kim Sigbee flew in Sunday and spent some time at Camp Grayling inspecting the new installations. The former governor explained he was here as a "citizen" who is interested in the 46th Division and as a friend of many of the Division's officers.

Army for the benefit of the National Guard. Before coming to Grayling this same force has worked with National Guard units in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Indiana. It will also demonstrate to personnel the transporting ability of the air cargo ships.

This flight of C-82's flew the now famous "Haylift" mission in the far west this past winter bringing food to cattle dying in the huge snow drifts. They have also been flying cargo missions in the Aleutian chain in Alaska and during the past year have operated as far south as Belem, Brazil.

The planes have been open for inspection by civilians from 4 to 8 each evening and it was estimated that about 2,200 people viewed the ships on Sunday alone.

The planes, crews and airborne troops are scheduled to leave here on Thursday. It was also announced that a loud speaker would be in operation during and before the mass parachute jump to explain each detail and step as the fast moving attack develops.

Lutheran Church Plans Vacation Bible School
The Grayling Lutheran Church will conduct a Vacation Bible School for 10 days beginning Wednesday, August 10 and ending Wednesday August 31.

Sessions will be held every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Danebod Hall from 10 o'clock to 12 noon.

Children from 5 to 12 years of age who are not now connected with another Sunday School are welcome.

LEGION NEWS
Our turnout is improving steadily despite the hot sticky weather. Our big sign south of town is now painted thanks to the work of our Vice Commander William R. Huddleston who donated the time and labor to paint and repair and get ready for the lettering. We need about two more signs. Anyone else ambitious?

A lot of our comrades volunteered to contact five other comrades to find out why they do not pay their dues or attend meetings more often. If you have any suggestions why not bring them up before the meeting and maybe we can get things running to suit everyone.

The door prize was won by George Quinn. It was a nice American Legion shirt made to order.

"Infantry Need Great," Loveland

Atomic warfare has not lessened the need for infantry troops in the Nation's military structure, Major General Ralph A. Loveland, Michigan National Guard commander, declared Sunday.

Stressing a need for continuous training of ground forces, the Guard commander said Germany "absorbed the equivalent of 500 atom bombs" in allied air raids preceding the Normandy invasion, yet that nation's industrial output of aircraft "was greater immediately after the bombing than before."

"It has been found that the use of the atom bomb is more limited than was originally contemplated," he revealed.

General Loveland reminded Michigan Guard officers, here with 116 ground units, two weeks of field exercises, that "the ultimate purpose of all military training is victory in war."

"Without going into much detail, I can assure you that the present thought on the highest level, and I mean the highest level of each of the armed forces—army, navy and air—is that in the next war it will take the three services to win it," he said.

In case of future war with any major aggressor nation, he went on, "it becomes doubtful if a thousand 'atom' bombs delivered in a very short period could put them out of business."

There is one added fact that we must think of, he said, and that is that military forces behind the iron curtain can overrun western Europe at will. There is no military force in Europe capable of stopping them. Not only can they overrun western Europe, but in a comparatively short time can convert the industries of western Europe to their own use. "If this were to happen, we would drop atom bombs on western Europe? I think we would not."

Extensive study by America's military leaders of combat lessons learned in World War II resulted in the decision to retain the three standard types of army divisions, —infantry, armored and airborne, the Guard commander stated. Infantry divisions, however, including the 46th Division made up of Michigan National Guardsmen, were recently recognized to provide more personnel and a 50 per cent increase in fire power and armor.

General Loveland quoted General Omar Bradley, army chief of staff, as saying long-range guided missiles "would not be effective in the near future."

"This adds up to the fact that the next war is most probably, will be fought much in the same manner as the last," he said. "But no longer can we plan on any foreign power keeping the aggressor busy while we build up an adequate fighting force. We in Michigan must spend every effort in keeping our 46th Infantry Division prepared for the day—if and when."

Plans Shaping
4-H Club Fair
Baseball games, movies, boxing matches, and a talent show are only a few of the many entertaining activities planned for the "bigger and better than ever before" Gaylord Kiwanis 4-H Club fair on Aug. 17-18, said Dr. Douglas M. Hird, general chairman.

One of the outstanding events will be the Little World Series, in which members of the Peanut League will vie for the championship in a five-inning game. Another sports highlight will be the Eagles nine playing another local ball team.

Flower show, horse show, tractor contest by members of the 4-H Tractor club and a parade through the main streets to the fair grounds are other entertaining features. Sports and comic movies for children and adults, a dance with a popular orchestra, and a talent show are headliners for the fair.

Many Plan Exhibits
Many Gaylord businessmen have already contacted Carl W. Peterson, chairman of the exhibits committee. Among those planning to have exhibits are the Hutchins Sand and Gravel and the Insurance Agency, Iven's Jewelry, Gaylord Lumber and Fuel, Rendezvous Restaurant, Gaylord Hi-Speed Station, Golden Rule Stores, Northern Auto Company of Gaylord, P. L. Hardware, and the Boy Scouts, sponsored by the Board of Supervisors.

Assisting Dr. Hird are Leonard Klasse, sports chairman; Glenn Smith, concessions; LeRoy Tebo, dinner; Gerald Roderick, parade and horse show; Floyd Lake, publicity; Frank J. Shipp, reception; Marley Kraus, decorating; Walter Noa, music; and Paul Kammeyer, program.

Beaver Creek No. 4 Pupils To Roscommon
The electors of Beaver Creek School District No. 4 voted to send their pupils to Roscommon School in a 35 to 3 balloting.

The special meeting was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening. Although there has been some discussion in the district during the past year, a united group cast ballots together.

Are private home builders falling down on the job?
Governor G. Mennen Williams thinks so. "If private industry, unaided, could meet this problem (homes for low-income workers) I would be entirely in favor of letting private industry handle it. But the record shows that private industry cannot handle the housing problem alone."

In advocating public housing whereby rents are subsidized by taxpayers, Williams points to four years experience of Detroit, as reported by the Detroit Housing Commission. The housing needs of the City of Detroit increased during the last four years by a total of more than 144,000 dwelling units. During the same period, the private building industry constructed a little more than 27,000 units, leaving more than 117,000 Detroit families still without adequate homes.

H. E. Allen, executive secretary of the Michigan Association of Home Builders, takes issue with the governor's blanket indictment. "According to the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, 446,400 new homes were started under construction in the first six months of 1949. This is 95.8 per cent of the record rate of production set in 1948 when 1,038,000 homes were completed. More than one-half of these homes were built to sell at $7,500 or less."

The U. S. Federal Reserve Board is authority for information that 40 per cent of these homes cost less than $5,000. Financing of homes is still the number one problem. Senate Bill 7-2, extending Federal Housing Administration guaranteed loans must be acted upon before Congress adjourns."

Governor Williams contends that housing is a government responsibility. "Everyone is aware to some degree of the acute housing problem which has afflicted us ever since the beginning of the second World War," he said recently.

"Many of us, regardless of our economic position in life, have faced housing problems. I myself had a difficult time finding a suitable home for my family in Lansing. With the exception of a very wealthy few, there isn't a group of our citizens which hasn't felt in some way the effect of the lack of homes."

Governor Williams also feels that the "denial of homes to veterans is a particularly flagrant contradiction of all that America stands for. The men and women who fought in World War II risked their lives for the defense of our country. It is an ironic tragedy that as an indirect result of their valorous struggle, there are no homes for them."

Allen, who serves as spokesman for Michigan home builders, maintains that hundreds of homes are now available throughout Michigan to war veterans at attractive terms.

"Down payments are not required from World War II veterans who can obtain Veterans Administration approval," he said. Monthly payments including interest and taxes on a two-bedroom house varies between $40 and $47. The VA requires interest of not more than 4 per cent on the mortgage. This advantage of the veteran becomes a handicap because of the difficulty in finding a lender, in view of the lack of cash payment, who will accept this lower-than-going rate.

"Private builders have advocated that Congress should increase this interest rate to 4 1/2 per cent, the prevailing rate paid by veteran home owners. This would make veteran mortgages really attractive and marketable."

One requirement in the new federal public housing act, recently adopted by Congress, is that which obtain federal subsidies must eliminate slum dwellings in an amount equal to the number of new public housing units provided.

A Washington business service assured home builders that the federal housing program will call for only about 15 per cent of the housing industry's total capacity of one million homes per year. As subsidized rents are limited to low-income workers, it is the intent of Congress that the program will meet a demand almost never met in the past by private builders.

Governor Williams may have this in mind when he declared builders had failed to do the job. In the long run, the public will be the judge.

Kiwanis Club
Notes
Colonel Donald Armstrong, commander of the Michigan Air Guard, was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Grayling held Monday evening.

Col. Armstrong spoke of air power and its tremendous surge during war time. He spoke concerning the present world situation and the part the war aircraft now playing in world power politics.

The talk was greatly enjoyed by members and was said by many to be the top program presented this year thus far.

Have you ever noticed the date stamped on each carton of A&P eggs? It is put there to protect the quality and freshness of this perishable item.

An egg that is Grade A when it is inspected and packed could become Grade B or C by the time you buy it if it has been improperly or slowly handled.

We don't want that ever to happen to an A&P egg. That is why we put the date when the eggs are graded on each carton. Eggs not sold within a few days of that date are removed from sale even though they are still of good quality.

If you should ever find that any of our egg cartons bear old dates or that any eggs fail to live up to our high quality standards, please tell us about it. Please write:

"$1250 took care of my $1,024.00 hospital bill... thanks to BLUE CROSS

And Blue Cross paid $140 in Surgeon's fees besides."

How about you and your family? Are you protected against unexpected hospital and medical bills?

One out of every ten persons in Michigan will go to a hospital this year. New medical techniques usually mean costly drugs and equipment—so that typical hospital bills are often three times as high as in 1941. That's why you and your family need BLUE CROSS protection now more than ever.

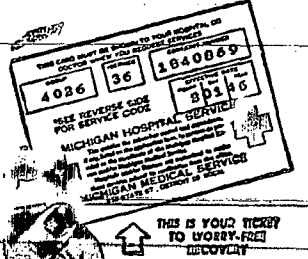

No other health-care plan offers so much for so little. BLUE CROSS—Michigan's most widely used.

Health-care plans—usually run by employers—pay out in benefits more than $10 from each dollar received.

BLUE CROSS Hospital Plan provides up to 120 days of care in participating hospitals. NO CASH LIMIT on this wide range of benefits covered.

BLUE CROSS Surgical and Medical-Surgical Plans give liberal benefits for operations... your own doctor's hospital bills in non-hospital cases.

Quit Kicking!

According to some experts, the present downturn in business has been stimulated by the wait-and-see attitude of many consumers. It is probable that it has also been encouraged by that considerable group who simply feel that prices are higher than they should be and refuse to make avoidable purchases until they come down. These attitudes are far from as logical and sensible as they sound. For one thing, they obstruct the normal functioning of supply and demand and curtail needed production.

As far as prices go, who can judge a fair price under existing conditions? Rare is the farmer who is ready to concede that he is getting too much money for his product. The same is true of manufacturers and distributors of virtually every necessity and luxury, and where is the workman who would advocate a wage cut? It is folly for anyone to establish in his mind an arbitrary idea of a fair price—on the other fellow's goods.

Many businesses nowadays are operating on a thin margin of profit. One observer, commenting on the recent experience of the textile manufacturers, pointed out that "they concluded everything was too high in price and, urged on by the constant necessity of orders to run 24 hours a day, they have consistently and progressively cut away their profit. Today—almost profitless—they still seek to run 24 hours a day." Probably some people are still waiting for the price of textile goods to get down to a "reasonable" level before buying.

The retail distribution industry is another that is operating on an extremely thin margin—its profits depend on efficient operation and volume. The annual statements of companies in all lines tell the same story. Survival depends on volume.

In reality the United States at this moment is nearer to production-for-use under the capitalistic "profit" system than communism, socialism or any other theoretical social scheme could ever hope to achieve. The proof of this is all around us.

NOW LADY LIBERTY HAS SEEN EVERYTHING. It was the ghost from an evil past that glided into New York harbor recently. When he was plotting world conquest, Adolf Hitler often must have had a notion that some day he would call into New York harbor on his palatial yacht "Grille." Well, half of the notion came true, anyway. Here is the "Grille," from whose deck Nazi Admiral Doenitz broadcast the news of Hitler's death. The vessel passed the Statue of Liberty, not as the carrier of a conqueror but only as a reminder that the would-be conqueror is gone. Present owner of the yacht, George Arida, will put the craft on exhibition here for various charities.

Cost Of Training Exceeds Million

Cost of 1949 field training for the Army and Air units of the Michigan National Guard will run over a million dollars according to figures released by the USP&DO for Michigan.

Budget estimates, based upon an attendance total of 9,000 Army troops and 1,200 airmen, run the bill for the third postwar field training session up to a grand total of $1,125,917.96. Of this $895,250.31 has been set aside for the field training for the 48th Inf. Div. and attached units. The remainder, $230,667.65, goes to pay for the second postwar field training period of the Michigan Air Guard.

The estimates for the 1949 field training include the cost of the Pre-Camp Messing Training School, the advance and rear detachments as well as the cost of the 15 day encampment itself.

Pay and allowances, as usual, account for the greatest portion of the million dollar encampment, with army and air troops receiving an estimated $669,599 to take back to their home communities. An additional $270,000 will also be expended in State pay. Subsidence for the army and air units will cost an estimated $183,798.46. Cost of food for the encampment is figured upon the basis of $1.12 per man for camp rations and $2.50 per man for travel rations.

Motor fuel and oil, including aviation fuel and oil, will cost an estimated $119,086.15. Much of this will go to keep the planes of the Air Guard in the air. Other estimates for the 1949 encampment are: Commercial transportation of personnel, $77,757.30; commercial transportation of equipment, $51,368.88; medical service, $1,348.00; communication service, $781.15; and miscellaneous supplies and expenses, $12,180.74.

In addition, Michigan will receive from the National Guard Bureau over $55,000 to pay for the subsistence, motor fuel, medical service, communication service, and miscellaneous supplies and expenses to be provided the Indiana Air National Guard which moves into Grayling Air Base for its summer field training period, 14 to 28 August.

Camp Grayling Nation's Finest

While their citizen-soldier comrades in most other states are training at Army installations, Guardsmen here in Michigan can feel quite lucky in being able to take their annual field training at Camp Grayling, long considered one of the finest state-owned military reservations in the country. First established in 1911 through a gift of some 27,000 acres of land by Rasmus Hanson of Grayling, a retired lumberman, Camp Grayling has played an historic role in the training and growth of the Michigan National Guard during the past 35 years.

Camp Grayling was first used by the Guard for field training in 1914. Guardsmen were mobilized there for their service in World War I and trained there through the years prior to World War II. This encampment marks the third post-war field training session for Michigan Guardsmen.

From the original grant, the military reservation has grown to more than 78,000 acres, located in the vicinity of Grayling and Fredric, with lands in Crawford, Kalamazoo and Otsego Counties. The encampment sites of the reservation extend back from the curving southern shoreline of Lake Michigan, which down through the years has provided Guardsmen with swimming and fishing opportunities.

Away from the encampment sites in several directions are the training areas for units of the 48th Division. Located near Fredric is the range used by artillery battalions, while all units of the division will make extensive use of the newly constructed known distance ranges at Bald Knob. A new tank range has been built near the south boundary of the artillery range. Other training centers have been established in various locations on the huge reservation.

As more and more of the projects in the Camp Grayling master expansion plan are completed, new buildings and areas will appear on the reservation encampment scene. A completely new Div. Arty engineer and tank battalion encampment area, complete with air strip for the division's light planes, is scheduled for construction on the plateau extending south of Division Hill. When the expansion program is finally completed Michigan Guardsmen will have a training reservation that will adequately care for the needs of a full infantry division.

Specs And I See Eye To Eye

Asked Specs Allen to go hunting last week. Known him all my life, so I wasn't surprised when he showed up with no gun. Specs doesn't like to kill anything.

Couldn't ask for a better hunting companion, though. We tramp around the woods, and whenever the dogs flush a bird, I blaze away while Specs just watches.

Told him once I was surprised he went along... feeling the way he does about shooting anything. "Well, Joe," he says, "you do what you think is right and I'll stick to what I think is right. I've no call to dislike you for not seeing everything the way I see it."

From where I sit, open-mindedness is a wonderful quality. There are plenty of things Specs admires that I don't care for. Like his fondness for buttermilk. I'd rather have a glass of beer anytime... but Specs Allen and I don't let little differences get in the way of something big like friendship.

SHORT STORY

Fifty Grand
A Year

By

FREDERICK MEDLIN

THEY still wonder why Johnson went mad so suddenly after he got out of stir. That is, all but Leo, the fence.

Johnson remembered it all as he strode feverishly through the hot, breathless night.

3-Minute Fiction The black curtain of darkness that pressed upon every side could not hide those things that had gone before. Even their memory increased his furious pace, and it was an effort not to cast a furtive glance over his shoulder as he drew near the spot on which the great oak should stand.

He remembered the night of ten years ago that he had stolen the Alsmeyer jewels. It had been a desperate thing to do, and he had half expected to be caught. His mind's-eye saw himself crawling up those precarious tracers of ivy on the high back wall of the Alsmeyer mansion. He recalled how cautiously he had opened the window with a glass-cutter and a file, how carefully he had placed the charge of explosive against the cleverly-concealed wall safe, how feverishly he had hurried through the acrid smoke to the battered door after the muffled explosion had shaken the room.

When down that sweep of ivy again to the ground and over the wall and along the hard road as the uproar behind him steadily grew the car with the fingerling searchlight darting down the road... his dogged flight across the field to the momentary haven of the huge oak... His fingers trembled convulsively again as they had when he had tumbled the jewels quickly into the leather bag and buried it safely, far back under the upcurled root. He heard again the deep-throated baying of the hounds, growing always closer, as he had under it, his fingers tingled as they touched rotten leather, and there were the jewels spread out. They were dull—but they were the Alsmeyer jewels.

AN HOUR later they were shimmering on velvet in Leo's back room that he used for business of secrecy; and Johnson was trembling with excitement.

Johnson paced the floor. "Five hundred grand!" he gloated. "That's fifty grand a year in the big house, and still they say crime don't pay. Why, Leo, I know lots of big guys that don't make fifty grand a year. I'm up in the big money now and it feels wonderful."

"You know what these are worth?"

"Yeah. Sure I do. So do you." Perhaps he only wanted to bargain. Some of the dread died in Johnson's heart. "Ain't you the best fence in the East? That's why I came to you."

"You know that I'm honest?"

Leo's query was very grave and very earnest.

"Sure. You always have been."

"The Alsmeyer jewels," said Leo slowly, almost sadly, "are just imitations. They might be worth five hundred dollars."

They still wonder why Johnson went mad so shortly after he got out of stir, that is, all but Leo, of course. Leo would know, for he is a very shrewd judge of human psychology—and jewels. It is said, by those who know, that Leo made almost half a million dollars out of the Alsmeyer jewels.

Heard it that night, hour after hour, twisting and dodging and hoping, knowing in his own heart that he would be caught, and fearing it with hysterical terror.

And that capture! The quick shot... the rapid whine of the bullets... the huge dogs dragging him down...

But they had never found the jewels. He had hidden them well, and for that he had been grateful for ten years.

He came quite suddenly upon the clump of trees. They seemed in the thick darkness to be the same stand of ten years ago. He moved about quickly with the flashlight until he found the peculiar root that curved outward and looped upward just as it had...

He had half expected to be caught.
